The Share Range Analysis available on our website is offered as a tool to help clients better understand the distribution of accounts by sorting them into predefined ranges based on share amount. This information is not intended to provide final results for account processing and/or material estimation. There are multiple factors surrounding the timing and reconciliation of shares, including the (the lack of) representation of fractional shares, that produce a variance between the share range analysis and the final results. We recommend that you use the percentages as a guideline for decision making, rather than for reporting.
